Optimising Sustainable Operations

The Newcastle Coal Infrastructure Group (NCIG) plays an important role in the coal export industry of the Hunter Valley. In fulfilling this role, we aim to provide a superior service to our customers who are leading coal producers.

We take a proactive approach to embedding sustainability at the core of our business, recognising that it creates business and societal value for a range of stakeholders and is integral to our long-term operational and financial success.

Our continuous improvement approach to managing ESG issues ensures that we can help our customers achieve their best outcomes in a sustainable manner, while also supporting our community and reducing our environmental footprint.

Specifically, we commit to:

- Manage our operations responsibly and efficiently while safeguarding the interests of our people, customers, shareholders, the wider community, and the environment.
- Promote a culture where all people are treated fairly and with respect and encouraged to reach their full potential.
- Maintain a safe workplace and zero harm culture.
- Develop processes that help us identify, prevent, mitigate, remedy and account for sustainability risks.
- Operate with governance systems and processes that maximise efficiency and minimise our footprint, creating value and positive impact.
- Acknowledge the importance of the global energy transition towards lower carbon intensive energy systems.
- Manage our environmental and ecological impacts beyond regulatory compliance to deliver positive outcomes for the local area.
- Support our people and their professional development with a particular focus on mental health and wellbeing, and inclusion and diversity.
- Support local and regional economic and social prosperity through employment, procurement, partnerships, and community investment.
